SIMON TOLLEY

2016 SAUVIGNON BLANC

ADELAIDE HILLS, SA

Another example of a more sophisticated and regional style to this variety, which will understandably be compared to NZ's Marlborough interpretations. This finds a keen crossing point between the tropical and the citrus elements of sauvignon, here with an aromatic attraction to its lime juice and leaf, a tempered palate, and a textural savoury sorrel and fennel feel to finish. It's cleansing and crisp enough to really excite beside shellfish.
